BURGLARS BUSY AT THAMESVILLE Freckle-Face

Entrance Gained to Four Houses Lut in Only One Instance Did They Get Anything-Refrigerator at E. A. Cudworth's Emptied-Frightened Away at Other Places.

What was evidently a persistent search for food regardless of the penality, startled not a few residents of Thamesville Friday night, or early Saturday morning when they discovered that entrances had been gained to their houses though nothing was missing, except in one case. Four houses in all were tried.

Entrances in all places were gained through unfastened windows or screens which were cut. At the home of the food and practically everything taken, although some meat which was at the back was left probably being overlooked. Nothing else was taken which, considering the visits at the other places, indicates to the police that food alone was sought. The police were informed Saturday morning and three hoboes who were having a lunch alongside the railroad truck were taken in but it was believed that they had nothing to do with the affair, as they gave conclusive accounts of their whereabouts the night before.

Since then nothing new has been learned about the matter and it remains as much of a mystery as ever. At the home of William Maynard, at the corner of West Thames and Dunham streets, the screen had been cut at one window in the kitchen across which there was a board and they gave up trying to get in there are first another window. As members of the family were up during the night, it is believed they were frightened away.

At the home of Frank P. Holt, No. 123 Woodmansee avenue, the same means of getting into the house was tried, but there it is also thought they were frightened away, as they were frightened away, as they were also at the house of William A. Wells at No. 5 Woodmansee avenue. In one of the houses a window of the cellar was broken.

Upon learning of the breaks, the residents informed the police, who took in the three tramps as suspicious characters, but otherwise no trace has been secured of the guilty parties.

There will be a small switch board for their use, though there will be parts of the switchboard and telephone to be explained to them as well as the principles of the business they intend to take up. It will be of great advantage to the operating department as thereby it can be determined what kind of operators they will make before they get a chance at the big board and only those who are capable will be chosen. Applicants for other exchanges in the division will be obliged to uttend the school.
